May 30, 2018

CHICAGO, May 30, 2018 /PRNewswire/ -- Old Republic International Corporation (NYSE: ORI) today announced that it is forming a new venture to provide services to residual markets. The new company, Old Republic Residual Market Services, Inc. ("ORMARKS"), will focus its operations on specialized services to various state-assigned risk plans and the National Council on Compensation Insurance (NCCI) Workers Compensation Insurance Plan. The new company will further expand Old Republic's general insurance and related services business. Capital requirements will be extended by Old Republic from internally available capital funds, and operating infrastructure will be provided by the overall resources of Old Republic's General Insurance Group subsidiaries.

In making this announcement, Ai Zucaro, Chairman & Chief Executive Officer, noted that, "This new venture is a natural extension and continuation of Old Republic's long, successful history of providing insurance-related services to public institutions, and further expands our long-standing, strong relationship with the NCCI. Under Scott Dahlager's leadership, we are confident our service offerings will meet and exceed stakeholders' expectations."
